EXT.COUNTRY HOUSE - FRONT YARD - MOMENTS EARLIER

HENRY, mid-sixties man with a gray beard, smiles with pain in his eyes, looking to LUCKY, ruggedly handsome young man in his upper twenties.

LUCKY
I just got Stacy back. I'm not letting her go again.

HENRY
You never let her go to begin with. That's the problem.

LUCKY
(defensive)
Wait, you don't know what I have or haven't let go of.

HENRY
(smiles angrily)
Don't I?

Lucky pauses, hesitant to answer, like a child responding to a rhetorical question from their parent.

After a short moment Lucky begins getting visibly upset.

LUCKY
It's not fair. What am I supposed to do with all this? How do I move forward? It's just not fair.

Lucky looks at Stacy with glassy eyes.

LUCKY (CONT'D)
(Yelling)
It's not fair!

HENRY
Yes! Right! It's not!

Both Lucky and Stacy are caught off guard.

Henry's eyes are glassy.

BACK TO:

Created using Celtx