INT. HOSPITAL - DISCHARGE LOBBY

With his back to us, LUCKY, ruggedly handsome Caucasian male in his late twenties stands at the front counter, signing paperwork.

Woman in scrubs approaches, but we can't see her face.

FLORENCE (O.S.)
Lucky?

Lucky turns around to

REVEAL: FLORENCE, FAMILIAR NATURALLY PRETTY WOMAN IN HER

TWENTIES.

LUCKY GIVES A SURPRISED AND PECULIAR LOOK.

FLORENCE
It's great to see you doing better.

LUCKY
Hey... Sorry. But we've met... haven't we?

FLORENCE
Oh, no. Not officially. I'm a nurse here. Not your nurse, but I checked in on you from time to time. So, it's just really great to see you up on your feet, after all you've been through.

Lucky's body language softens as he nods.

FLORENCE (CONT'D)
But I just wanted to say hello. I'm Florence by the way.

She extends her hand and Lucky shakes it, looking her in the eyes.

LUCKY
Do you like flowers, Florence?

FLORENCE
Yeah, actually Florence means flower.

LUCKY
Yeah... Yeah, so I'm told.

They have a moment.

FLORENCE
Anyway, I'll let you get to it. Great to see you, Lucky.

LUCKY
You too, Florence.

Florence smiles as she turns to walk away.

With her back to Lucky, her facial expression fades to disappointment.

Until

Florence.

She stops and turns back to Lucky.

LUCKY (CONT.)
What made you check in on me?

Florence smiles, takes a deep breath, then pauses before answering.

FLORENCE
If I'm being honest, I wanted to thank you and also apologize.

LUCKY
(confused)
For what?

FLORENCE
Can I tell you a story, Lucky?

LUCKY
Sure.

FLORENCE
About a month after my brother died in duty, I received a late letter from him, and a full page of that letter was about this man that saved his life and gave him purpose. He went on about perspective and the value of life being measured by who we help. He said if we can help even 1 person, our time here is worth it.

Florence adjusts her collar, grabbing the silver chain around her neck to pull out military dog tags.

FLORENCE (CONT.)
What he didn't know is...

Florence pauses for a beat, getting emotional.

I had a bottle full of pills, and a glass of wine on my nightstand, ready to go to sleep for a long time. But there was something about receiving that letter, in that moment.

She pauses and shakes her head with tears in her eyes.

It saved my life. That's when I decided to start helping others who struggle.
(smiles)
Through a text help line for veterans. So, when I saw the name of the man who saved and inspired my brother, Private Steven Nelson, on the text line...

Lucky's eyes widen, surprised.

It was like seeing a ghost. And when he stopped responding to my messages...

A tear rolls down Florence's cheek.

QUICK FLASH: Lucky's phone on the motel room floor next to him with missed calls and text messages on screen.

I had to do something. But I'm truly sorry.

Florence wipes her tears, getting herself together.

LUCKY
You're the one who called 911.

(shrugs with a smile)
My call got you shot.

LUCKY
No. You saved my life. Trust me. I made some pretty bad decisions that day, and I'll have to face some legal consequences for those decisions. But I wouldn't be alive if someone didn't care enough to intervene. You saved my life.

FLORENCE
You saved mine first. And I wanted to thank you for that. Your influence in my brother's life gave me the motivation to keep going and find my purpose. I don't know what happened over there, but thank you, Lucky. Thank you so much.

LUCKY
(looking down)
Good ole Nelson.

FLORENCE
His roots outgrew this world.

(half smile)
What did you just say?

FLORENCE
I just mean, like a house plant outgrows its pot, Steven outgrew this world. Now he's in a bigger pot.

Lucky stares silently, then smiles.

Florence smiles back.

A bigger pot..

They hold their gaze with smiles.
